

ONDAMED®

A story of love,
healing & medical revolution.

By Silvia Binder, N.D., Ph.D.

Chapter 4:

The opening of the third eye

I was excited flying to Crete, a beautiful island in Greece. It was the middle of May in 2003, and I was going to a training class with Sissi Karz, a renowned German therapist who now lived in Crete. She spearheaded many of ONDAMED®'s therapeutic program developments and I was about to meet her and spend a week with her and a small group of other therapists to learn in depth of how to use this device according to her methodology.

We spent wonderful days in Sissi's house on top of the hills of Crete, learning many different aspects on the depth of using ONDAMED® in physiological, emotional, and spiritual settings. It must have been on the third day, when I had the most bizarre experience. While sitting in class, this vision came from the top of the heavens right into my head and I saw myself as a child no older than two, waving good-bye to my brothers who were standing behind the windows with very sad faces waving to me and my mother as we drove away from the house. It was very clear to me that this was a memory which I had not known existed in such a detailed and memorable way until this very moment. It was the time when my mother left my father and two older brothers to relocate from Southern Germany to Vienna, Austria legally allowed to bring me with her only due to my young age.

I could not stop crying for at least two hours. Within minutes of receiving this vision, I had to remove myself from class, and sit outside the building on the driveway. It felt so very good to get a hold of this memory and start reliving the pain associated with it.

It must have been the treatment that I had received the day before that activated my cellular memory. I was now experiencing the pain of my leaving my father and brothers. After having embraced this memory and weeping for several hours in great emotional pain, I started to feel lighter and I was feeling the sensation as if a flower was blossoming from the area of my pancreas. It was an incredible and refreshing experience. It was just the next day when, in the middle of the day, I had the incredible sensation of my third eye open. It just happened.

It must have been the treatment that I had received the day before that activated my cellular memory. I was now experiencing the pain of my leaving my father and brothers. After having embraced this memory and weeping for several hours in great emotional pain, I started to feel lighter and I was feeling the sensation as if a flower was blossoming from the area of my pancreas. It was an incredible and refreshing experience. It was just the next day when, in the middle of the day, I had the incredible sensation of my third eye open. It just happened. From one moment to the next. My vision changed so that I was no longer just looking out of my two eyes, but looking more from a rounded and uninterrupted perspective. It seemed as though I had a much bigger blood was kicking in and reminding me of my own power. I had been to Greece many times before since my mother was born in Greece, but it was at this time, being taught and treated with this life-changing technology ONDAMED® that must have reconnected me to my inner self. I would never see out of my eyes the way I had for 36 years. My vision changed at this very brief moment to last me a life time.

Chapter 5:

ONDAMED® Roll out: a therapeutic device and method empowering individuals

It was on February 22, 2002 when Rolf and I met with our corporate attorney in New York to formalize the establishment of ONDAMED® Inc. Rolf had just flown in from Germany and it was the very first time that he visited New York and that we personally met. We connected immediately with a heart and soul recognition and enjoyed several days together which we spent getting to know each other on a professional level and getting to know the technology and methodology.

The German company ONDAMED® GmbH was founded in 1994 in Southern Germany, in the area of the Black Forest. It took Rolf about a year to birth this revolutionary medical device after having fully conceptualized the idea in his head. Certainly, this idea took years to develop in his head and he had the perfect background working as the head developer at MedTronik in Germany, responsible for the product development of the MORA bio-resonance devices. Franz Morell, M.D. was the founder of the idea of bio-resonance in the 1970's. Dr. Morell as Mastermind and his son-in-law ran the company with its unique therapeutic ideas and revolutionized the alternative medical market in Germany. Over the years, there were managerial difficulties and the lead sales man separated from left MedTronik and started his own company going head-to-head with MORA with his own devices called BICOM.

After twelve years of developing most of the MORA devices still sold today, Rolf was ready to move away from bio resonance and move on to develop a cutting edge medical technology which was probably two decades ahead of its time. Most important to Rolf was to combine a measurable physical treatment with a personalized method that would offer recognition of the entire human being while offering a powerful stimulation of the human physiology including cells, tissue, organs, tendons, ligaments, joints, bones, and fluids along with the emotional and spiritual aspects that ground and drive us; Getting to the truth of the individual's health journey, picking them up from where they are physically, emotionally and spiritually; Working with specialized fields which are emitted in a very focused way reaching throughout the entire body and stimulating everything along the way. Unlike a bullet, which penetrates the skin and eventually gets stuck in tissue or bone, the ONDAMED® pulsing fields are powerful whispers to the body starting from the entry point which most of the time is the skin and penetrates the entire body in a straight line until exiting the body, again from most likely, the skin. With every inch or centimeter away from the applicator and into the body, the field intensity or in other words the strength of the emitted pulsing fields reduces; of course, unless there is metal in the body, such as an implant or a pacemaker, the fields stop at the metal since electromagnetic fields are absorbed by the conductive metal. The stimulation spectrum used by ONDAMED® is always safe and has no contra indications. It is safe to use ONDAMED® for patients with implants and pacemakers, autism, depression, organ transplants, and even seizures. Most PEMF devices on the market today have contra indications due to their stronger field intensity, or higher frequency range, or different field shapes.

Specialized applicators emit frequencies ranging from 0.1 to 31,835 Hz (Hertz) with an intensity of 0.5 to 55 mT (milli Tesla), depending on applicator type, always staying within a stimulation intensity naturally known by our own cells. These pulsating electromagnetic fields tap into the cellular communication pathways, help restore cellular communication where needed to allow improved flow of fluid, energy, and cellular communication locally and thereby impacting cellular networks throughout the body.

The key is focused fields.

Focused electromagnetic fields penetrate the physiological area where the applicators are placed. The treatment stimulation is targeted to areas most in need of repair and regeneration. Applying focused electromagnetic fields will get you the fastest and most lasting healing response. There is nothing wrong with generic pulsing electromagnetic field therapies available on the market, but you will most likely get a result which mirrors the application: generic and not lasting. If you can intercept and signal the cells using a language known by our cells and delivered in a clear and direct way, then communication can be effectively adapted by our cells. Sending a multitude of frequencies at the same time can be compared to speaking several languages at the same time which would be impossible to effectively understand and adapt. Our bodies need specificity in order to heal quickly